

Women in America

March 4, 2011, 12:00pm – 1:30pm

Admission is free.

RSVP to attend this event if you have not done so already

The Center for American Progress and the White House Council on Women and Girls invite you to a discussion on the new White House report, “Women in America: Indicators of Social and Economic Well-Being.” Join us for a conversation with administration officials and policy experts as we talk about women’s present role in families as well as in education, employment, health, and crime in American society and what policymakers, researchers, and advocates can do to further the collection of gender-specific data in the future.

Featured Presenters:

Tina Tchen, Executive Director of the White House Council on Women and Girls, White House

Preeti Bansal, Senior Policy Adviser and General Council, Office of Management and Budget

Rebecca Blank, Acting Deputy Secretary of Commerce, Department of Commerce

Panelists:

Heather Boushey, Senior Economist, Center for American Progress

Barbara Gault, Executive Director and Vice President, Institute for Women’s Policy Research

Avis Jones-DeWeever, Executive Director, National Council of Negro Women

Ana Harvey, Assistant Administrator for Women’s Business Ownership, U.S. Small Business Administration

Lynn Rosenthal, Advisor on Violence Against Women, White House

March 4, 2011, 12:00pm – 1:30pm

Space is extremely limited. RSVP required.

Seating is on a first-come, first-served basis and not guaranteed.